The Graduate Committee held 2 successful events this year. The first one was “Food for Thought” and the second one, held May 5, “Ice Cream Social. Both events were very well attended. The first event drew 77 graduate students and the second event drew 86 graduate students.

Unfortunately, I can only give an estimate of the expenditures because the receipts have not been submitted. I can approximate. The first event cost approximately $800 and the second event cost approximately $800.

Students were very grateful at both events. They appreciated the food of course and were very happy to socialize.

We were able to collaborate with the Office of Student Activities. For both events they assisted us with paid staff that helped with set-up, takedown, greeting, serving non-alcoholic drinks and spirited drinks. They also monitored the amount of drinks by using wristbands that limited spirited drinks to 3 per person. The Office of Student Activities also uses a counter so that an accurate number of students are accounted for. The Office of Student Activities advertised the event throughout the campus and with the assistance of the Graduate Community Assistant. In addition we were able to get assistance through the Diversity Community as well which is led by Sabrina Kwist.

Respectfully submitted,

Lillian D. Sahagun
